ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Jeffrey Franklin grew up in Chattanooga, TN, and calls Denver, CO, home. Poems in Hudson Review, Measure, New England Review, Rattle, Shenandoah, etc. Received the Winner Memorial Award from the Poetry Society of America and appeared in Best American Poetry.

Jeff Franklin's poems are brilliantly achieved, and speak to us from a mind and heart that deeply know and feel the dimensions of the human condition—its capacity for empathy, joy, and inevitably, sorrow and loss. His poems help defend us against these aspects of mortality, making time our ally while we read, leaving us with a new hope alive in language.

James Applewhite, author of Time Beginnings
